MONDAY OCTOBER 18, 1909

"As I survey the past and look into the future, I am firmly convinced that the world is improving; that mankind is growing better; that we, as people and nations, are aiming at higher things. Despite all the shortcomings, the failures to reach high standards, the criticisms of the day, I believe we are progressing toward a better life."—Associate Justice Brewer.

No one seems to have collapsed from surprise over the latest victory of the greatest negro fistic artist in the world.

Judged by the test of Saturday, Honolulu could send a tennis team into the upper circle of tennis world and have no difficulty in making them all sit up and take notice.

Don't wait until the rush of winter business is nearly passed, and then wonder why nothing was done early in the season to solve the transportation problem of Honolulu.

Maui, with its new Chamber of Commerce representing all the hamlets of the island, should be supplemented by a similar organization to prove that Kaula is united and ready for action when public interests require it.

It would not be the first time some of the local hot heads among Japanese residents talked of boycotting and so forth, with the result that after more mature deliberation they thought better of it and denied everything.

Real values of Honolulu's investments have not been reduced the fraction of a cent. The ups and downs of the market are merely incidents of a steady progress that will make the Honolulu of 1912 look like another city.

Transportation companies that promise to put on larger steamers if given the proper local support, ought not to wait long on a Honolulu that is thoroughly and earnestly united for the solution of this Territory's greatest problem.

Honolulu always has a cordial welcome for the honored representatives of all friendly nations, and although Prince Kuni cannot remain long, we believe that the memories of his visit to this American port will be quite as happy as his stay in the city on the other side, where he made his first acquaintance with America's good will.

Revision of the Organic Act is entitled to the undivided attention of the people and their representatives. Therefore, the extra session of the Legislature will be more widely approved as all the pros and cons are carefully thought out. As for the expense, you can't get even competent and well-balanced legislation for nothing.

If any Hawaii Supervisor can convince any intelligent man that Hawaii County's road policy is the best, either one or both might be considered as reincarnated representatives of a mis-spent life during the dark ages. Hawaii County Supervisors have not even an engineer to start them right in the first principles of good road building.

Now that the students of the College of Hawaii have broken into athletics, perhaps a larger number of our intelligent citizens will realize that the institution is on earth, and its great benefits are being made use of by an increasing number of Hawaii's bright young men and women. The College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts "made good" in every mainland State and Territory. The Territory of Hawaii will be no exception to the rule.

Of course nothing good can come out of Tammany, but since Tammany has been forced to nominate a respectable candidate for Mayor of New York City, it may be safely said to call attention to the comment of Ernest Harvier, who presided over a convention of the Democratic Union, an organization made up of Democrats opposed to Tammany. Mr. Harvier's remarks appropriately cover a broader field than certain New York Republicans. They fit a type of American humanity who would do politics occasionally, and then only in a half-hearted manner. Mr. Harvier said: "Anyone who has attended a fusion conference in New York in which the Republican party was represented by conferees of unquestioned amiability and extreme politeness can understand why it is that New York remains a Democratic city. All righteous political movements for civic benefit seem to have a powerful attraction for fools. A good motto for political conferences would be the words of Napoleon at the battle of the Pyramids: 'The battle is to begin now. All jackasses to the rear.'"

STOP WHEN FINISHED.

Managers of the Y. M. C. A. building campaign are not only to be congratulated on having raised a record fund in record time, but also on deciding to stop after having reached the point set.

To have a second thought and go after more than the original sum on account of the work being easier than was expected is to be very much like the man who names a figure at which he will sell stock and then keeps hanging on for fear the other fellow will make some money, and in the long run loses.

Nearly everybody is good natured about this campaign. Most of the givers were willing givers, and if they were not, they don't feel so badly that they won't forget it in the joy of watching results.

To actively campaign for more would start a line of argument and criticism that would more than likely tinge pleasure of success with might-have-beens and ought-to-bees, that would hurt the Y. M. C. A. work and impede the workers.

The amount raised by this community for the Y. M. C. A. building is a princely sum. It should give this city a magnificent building, perfectly equipped, and we have no doubt that with such a start the cause will attract voluntary subscriptions from more who can afford to be philanthropic.

And now that the money is raised among the home people who have responded so liberally, it is to be hoped that the managers of the organization will reciprocate in kind. Domestic money has been supplied, and it would seem highly proper that home people should do the work, furnish the material and do the construction.

POVERTY'S TRIUMPHS.

The following extract from an article by John A. Johnson, who, from a boyhood of narrow limitations, rose to be Governor of Minnesota, gives something of the ideals of the man whose recent death was heard with sorrow throughout the United States:

"It is my conclusion that the bitterness of poverty, the terrible drudgery those who rise from the bottom must experience, the bitter longings and the heartaches for the things we want—want with heart and soul, and always find just beyond us—comprise the test of fire to which a far-seeing Providence subjects those who are destined to succeed. And whether real success is possible without this suffering, I doubt. When people call me Governor and show respect, it pleases me, but my mind invariably reverts to the time when no one dignified me, and I wonder why and what these things mean. So much in life we none of us understand!"

"But there's a purpose, and those of us who have a desire to accomplish a work in the world can only remember that there is no honor not founded on worth, and no respect not founded on accomplishment. And, above all, to help others to life, to hope, to see the greatness of the future and to strive for a share in the accomplishment of something which is new and needed in this world, or which is worthy because it contrib-

Their affluence has cut them off from the greatest thing in the world—to know how the average, commonplace, unsought and unthought man lives, what he feels, what he thinks. There is but one end of life which is worthy and that is to conquer—to conquer adversity, pain, envy, regrets, ambitions and the obstacles which are put in our path to develop our fortitude, our courage and our intelligence."

Maui Has Launched Chamber Of Commerce

(Special to the Bulletin.)
WAILUKU, MAUI, Oct. 15.—The Chamber of Commerce for the County of Maui was organized at the Wailuku Town Hall last evening. There were over thirty people present. Hon. H. P. Baldwin was elected temporary chairman, and Mr. C. D. Larkin, cashier of the First National Bank of Wailuku was made temporary secretary. Mr. Baldwin made a few remarks concerning the Honolulu Chamber of Commerce and similar bodies in the States, more especially the one at Cleveland, Ohio, which had done excellent work for the advancement of the city as well as the state. A motion by Manager H. B. Penhallow of the Wailuku Sugar Company that those present organize themselves into a Chamber of Commerce for the County of Maui was adopted without a dissenting voice, and twenty-nine closed Saturday," said ex-Governor Carter, who is very happy over the success of the affair, "but those who care to contribute to the fund are allowed to do so. We had in mind a thousand contributions—say of $1 each. It is not so much the large donations from a few, as a large number of small contributions from everybody interested in the work. The Y. M. C. A. is for the people, and the work it is doing is for the great majority."

CAMPAIGN NOTES.

A great Y. M. C. A. established in an adequate building will keep men from gambling, pernicious loafing and other forms of vice and wastefulness by offering them an opportunity to spend their unoccupied hours in a home atmosphere, surrounded by the best influences. Our Young Men's Christian Association has come to be recognized as a powerful and a necessary factor, both in business and in governmental matters—President Taft.

Dr. Hand, the physical director of the Y. M. C. A., is already planning on some really big things for the athletic branch of the institution. He proposes to develop in time an international meet for Honolulu. This is designed to attract the best men from all points in and about the Pacific ocean. There will be field events, track contests and water contests. Dr. Hand is confident that this enterprise, while something huge, can be carried out to a fine success.

"I predict," said W. R. Castle this morning, "that the new Y. M. C. A. building will become Honolulu's civic center in that it will be the rallying point for community movements of all sorts. The building will have a number of fine halls or apartments that can be used as halls. The auditorium itself will be the finest in the islands, and that lobby is going to be something so useful that we will all wonder how we managed to get along in the past without it. I hope to see the various organizations of ladies, like their Conservation Society, assemble in that lobby. It has great possibilities. With its

of those present attached their autographs to membership roll as charter members of the first Chamber of Commerce ever organized on Maui. Many of those present have been all along cognized of the necessity of such an organization for the better advancement of the material as well as the political and moral interests of the county, but it was left to Mr. J. N. S. Williams, Superintendent of the Kahului Railroad Company, to bring the matter to a focus. Among those present were plantation managers, bank cashiers, newspaper editors, captains of industry of the various small farming districts of Maui, and business men generally.

A committee of five on organization and by-laws were appointed by the chair as follows: D. C. Lindsay, A. F. Tavares, Patrick Cockett, W. G. Scott and H. L. Weisshelmer, with the chairman and secretary ex officio members.

palms and ferns and fresh flowers it will be a thing typical of Honolulu, distinctive and attractive. Mr. Weinstein, the great merchant of California, has said that the Y. M. C. A. is a character factory. With the right sort of furnishing and management it will be a citizen factory. In the highest degree it will be a place where any group of men or women can meet in any interest that will make for the advancement of the community.

"With certain friends I have been identified with the Y. M. C. A. for a number of years. Watching its expansion has been a most interesting observation. This building movement is the logical outcome of the growth of the town as well as of the Association. Alexander Young set the pace when he built in advance of the immediate needs of the town. The Association is going ahead to meet a demand. It is the duty of every citizen to co-operate. We'll have a great day when we lay the corner stone of the new building."

MILLIONS IN GOLD FOR JAPAN BANKS

DISTINGUISHED JAPANESE ARE RETURNING HOME

Tenyo Maru's Arrival Attended by Big Demonstration at Hackfield Wharf—Small Freight List for Far Eastern Ports.

Millions of gold for Japanese banks is stored away in the specie tanks of the Japanese liner Tenyo Maru, which drew up alongside of the Hackfield wharf about 11 o'clock this morning.

The star passenger aboard the big Oriental liner is Prince Kuni, a member of the royal family of Japan.

His appearance as he leaned over the rail of the Tenyo Maru was the signal for a succession of lusty banzais from a thousand throats as the vessel was made fast.

"It was a fine trip down," was the succulent comment of Captain Bent. "Weather all that could be desired and everyone apparently enjoyed the voyage."

The Tenyo sighted the Nippon Maru on Sunday morning according to the report of C. Laey Goodrich, purser for the handsome liner.

The Tenyo's passenger list fairly teemed with titled personages. The names bear a close resemblance to the invitation roster of the Tokio Imperial Palace. In consequence of this invasion of Japanese royalty, Goodrich and his assistants did much to make the trip an agreeable one for the distinguished passengers. When the vessel sailed from San Francisco the staterooms occupied by the Prince and his company was a bower of floral tributes from a legion of loyal subjects.

J. D. Gaines, the first manager of the Pacific Commercial Cable Company at Honolulu is on his way to Shanghai, where he takes up his new duties at the China station. He is accompanied by Mrs. Gaines and they were accorded a warm welcome at the wharf.

Another passenger is R. T. Crane, a son of ex-Minister Crane, who failed in his appointment to the Legation at Peking.

R. Peracca, an Argentine newspaperman, who is going to the Orient to make a study of conditions there, also travels on the Tenyo.

The Tenyo brought 229 sacks of mainland mail for Honolulu. Her shipment of specie and bullion will total up nearly three million. Two million is in U. S. gold coin and it goes to Kobe, where it will be transferred to the vaults of Japanese banks. A portion of the valuable cargo is in the form of gold and silver bricks.

The Tenyo has a light freight list. Between eight and nine hundred tons is the total amount of merchandise intended for Japan and China ports.

Sixty-four second class passengers are traveling to Far Eastern ports. Twenty-two cabin passengers join the vessel here and will sail for Japan and China by the vessel which leaves her wharf at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Among the prominent through passengers is George Whitney, the one-time champion tennis player from the State of California. Whitney is booked for Japan. It is said that he is at present out of the game and his mission is one of business.

C. E. Richardson, representing the interests of the Sperry Flour Company in the Straits Settlements, the Federated Malay States and India, is on a general tour of inspection of the Far Eastern agencies. He will make an extensive tour of the various cities where American flour is striving to enter competition with the Australian product.

Another old timer in the Far East is J. Orange, who has been on a brief business trip to the United States; he proceeds by the Tenyo to Hongkong. Hackfield & Co., the local representatives for the Tenyo Maru, announcing the departure of that liner for Japan and China ports at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.
